ORGANIZATION OF THIS DOCUMENT

The Integrated Occupational Program list of authorized resources is organized in two parts:

Part I: Authorized Resources Listed by Subject (Grades 8 – 11/12)

Basic resources for IOP subjects are available at this time only for English Language Arts, Career Development and Universal Strategies. Resources that may meet basic criteria for Social Studies, Mathematics and Science are under review.

Student Support Resources are listed alphabetically within each subject and followed by authorized teaching resources. Each entry provides the following information:

- series name (if applicable)
- title of resource
- authorization category (student basic, student support, teaching)
- grades authorized for
- vendor/distributor name, order number and price
- other IOP subjects authorized for (if any).

Part II: Annotated Bibliography (alphabetical listing by title)

Each of the resources in Part I has a corresponding annotation in Part II. Each annotation page identifies the:

- series name (if applicable)
- title of resource
- type of resource—the annotation has an icon of the type of the resource (e.g., print, video, CD–ROM)
- authorization category (student basic, student support, teaching)
- grades authorized for
- subjects authorized for
- vendor/distributor name, order number and price.

RESOURCE AUTHORIZATION CATEGORIES

New Integrated Occupational Program Resources

This resource list for the Integrated Occupational Program (IOP) contains instructional materials that have been authorized for use in Alberta schools. The list includes resources for IOP, grades 8 – 11/12 English Language Arts, Mathematics, Science, Social Studies, Career Development and Universal Strategies.

Alberta Learning selects and authorizes the best possible instructional materials for the implementation of approved programs of study. Teachers are encouraged to select resources according to the reading levels of students. The resource authorization categories are student basic, student support or authorized teaching, and the status is noted for each resource.

> Student Basic learning resources are those student learning resources authorized by Alberta Learning as the most appropriate for addressing the majority of outcomes of the course(s) or substantial components of the course(s); or the most appropriate for meeting general outcomes across two or more grade levels.
> Student Support learning resources are those student learning resources authorized by Alberta Learning to assist in addressing some of the outcomes of the course(s) or components of the course(s); or to assist in meeting the outcomes across two or more grade levels.
> Authorized Teaching resources are those teaching resources identified as the best available resources to support the implementation of programs of study and courses; they may be teacher guides to accompany student resources or teacher professional resources. The authorized teaching guides are listed with the student resources.

These resources are organized by subject, authorization status and title in alphabetical order. Series names are italicized. Grade level(s) are indicated beside each title and there is a cross-reference column to other IOP subjects on the right side of the page.

Note:

Alberta Learning strongly recommends that teachers read all selections in the student resources and all activities in the teacher guides prior to using them with students. Careful consideration should be given to the sensitivities of both the student audience and the community, and of the reading levels of students.

The Alberta Framework of Essential Competencies consists of a set of essential competencies (skills, knowledge and work effort) that promote success in everyday living. The folder also includes information that explains the framework and how it can be used. The competencies are organized into four dimensions: Building Personal Capacity, Interacting and Communicating, Planning and Managing, and Using Data and Computer Technology. Within each dimension there are two sub-competency areas: for example, Building Personal Capacity is divided into Personal Management and Managing Transitions. The other sub-competency areas are Working with Others, Communicating (including ESL and literacy); Thinking, Achieving Results, Numeracy, and Computer Technology. Each competency has five performance indicators that can be taught and learned, and the outcome observed. An individual can start where he or she is and progress as he or she wishes. The individual competency statements are intended to be incorporated into new and existing curricula. The accompanying CD-ROM Action Planner is a Word document that encompasses the competencies and a self-assessment form that teachers may use with students in part or in whole to identify strengths and opportunities for growth.

Comments:

• Most of the competencies included in the Framework are not the ones that people are usually hired for, but many are ones that people are often fired for lacking.

These resources, written at a Grade 3 level, describe animals, birds and reptiles of the rain forest. Each resource addresses a different animal. In Bats, for example, there is a range map, a chapter on eating habits, a chapter on life cycle and a chapter on how to identify bats. Each resource contains a glossary. The teacher's guides contain suggested questions and activities, and an answer key. These booklets could be used for free reading or research material.

Comments:

- Words that appear in the glossary are not bolded in the written material.
- Both questions and activities are very elementary in appearance and in skills required, resembling blackline masters.

These two books explore topics such as environmental issues and the effects of contact on societies of the world from a social activist / environmentalist point-of-view. The information is divided by regions of the world, with each section accompanied by a map of the specified region. A map index and short glossary are included. The resources use a series of icons to indicate different environmental and social problems in different locations throughout the world. The Atlas of Endangered Peoples provides maps and information about areas in the world such as Southwest Asia, Central and Southern Africa, and the Antarctic. At the beginning of each entry there are two or three symbols with each symbol representing something that threatens the health, livelihood or existence of people in that area of the world. The Atlas of Endangered Resources identifies areas of the world where there are problems with resource use. Six main resource categories are used in the atlas (energy, air, water, soil, minerals and biodiversity) – each represented by a key symbol. Additional symbols are used in entries and on maps to identify resource problems.

Comments:

• No teacher resources or student activities are included.

Cautions:

• This resource focuses heavily on social activism and environmentalism and does not always provide a balanced view of an issue or problem.

✓

Big Burn is a story about two teens on Eastern Canada's coastline. The story focuses on responsible citizenship and proactive problem solving, as the characters take on a big company to protect their community from the company's toxic waste dumping. The novel is written at a lower level and is easy for students to read.

Comments:

• The resource does not include a teacher's guide.

• Big Burn offers opportunities to integrate with IOP Science on environmental issues.

Cautions:

• The resource contains two instances of inappropriate language or behaviour.

• Alberta Learning strongly recommends that teachers preview this resource. Careful consideration should be given to the sensitivities of both the student audience and the community.

Breakthroughs in Critical Reading: Developing Critical Reading Skills

515447 $20.00

Support Resource Grade 10, 11, 12

English Language Arts	Mathematics	Science	Social Studies	Career Development	Universal Strategies
✓

Breakthroughs in Critical Reading aims to teach students to understand what they read by identifying the main idea and details, summarizing and paraphrasing, and recognizing the organization of ideas. The resource covers a variety of topics related to critical reading and thinking skills, including comprehension, vocabulary, inferring, predicting and identifying persuasive techniques. The resource consists of five chapters, which provide selected readings, pre- and post-tests, and special exercises on comprehension (12 exercises), vocabulary (nine questions) and study skills (one exercise). The post-test consists of 30 multiple choice questions with an answer key given at the back of the workbook. A summary chart is also included, with the skills cross-referenced to the question number.

Cautions:

- Potentially sensitive topics include Yeti, traumatic events, fortune telling and dream premonitions, and generalizations about parents and politicians.
- Teachers are advised to familiarize themselves with the content of the resource before using it with students. Teachers will want to make sure that materials are presented in context and that negative references are balanced with positive references.
- Another essay should be substituted for "The Effects of Crack on Babies."

Bully Dance / La danse des brutes

514118 $46.70

Authorized Teaching Resource Grades 8, 9

English Language Arts	Mathematics	Science	Social Studies	Career Development	Universal Strategies
					✓

Bully Dance presents various bully behaviours and roles for bystanders through the story of one bully's impact on his community. The resource deals with conflict management and resolution, problem solving, identifying and describing rights of self and others, and demonstrating respect. The video uses a visually appealing, nonverbal animated format. This method of presentation may engage IOP learners and also provides opportunity for discussion and development of various strategies appropriate to a variety of situations. Some post-viewing activities are suggested, but these will need to be expanded.

Cautions:

- Teachers will need to be sensitive to the background of the students in their group.
- Because the video promotes sharing of personal opinions and experiences, it would be most effective when students have had time to become comfortable in their groups.
- Teachers are encouraged to promote respect for ideas expressed and to ensure that students understand they may "pass" during discussion.

✓

Carving My Name is a collection of nine short stories by Canadian author Mary-Kate McDonald. The stories focus on young people who are asked to become adults before their time. The characters are faced with a number of difficult situations, as they and their parents experience loss, remarriage, mental illness and other challenges. Although the characters have feelings of grief, loneliness, pain and betrayal, they are sustained through these challenges by their courage, resilience, friendship and loyalty. These stories are recommended for teacher-directed use, especially as a starting point for discussion.

Comments:

- The resource does not include a teacher's guide.

Cautions:

- The stories contain some inappropriate language and deal with sensitive issues, including death, suicide, abuse and sexual orientation.
- Alberta Learning strongly recommends that teachers preview this resource. Careful consideration should be given to the sensitivities of both the student audience and the community.

This resource covers many aspects of geography, including the world in spatial terms, places and regions, physical systems, human systems, and environment and society. The resource focuses on Canada and its regions, but also covers the rest of the world, with information organized by continent. For each continent, the atlas provides a number of maps, showing data on economics, population, climate, topography, environment, political boundaries, transportation, energy production, mineral fuel deposits and natural hazards. The section on Canada offers the same kinds of information, but in more detail. The accompanying teacher's guide follows the same organization as the atlas and includes a variety of outline maps and supplementary discussion questions. It offers a variety of different activities, including questions based on information in the atlas, extension activities, challenge activities and cross-curricular activities (language arts, mathematics, science and art.)

Comments:

• Although the atlas addresses mainly geography-specific units, it can be used as a reference book throughout the Integrated Occupational Program.

This teacher professional resource offers a collection of classroom teaching strategies that can be applied to a variety of subject areas. The resource describes over 45 different strategies, providing step-by-step instructions on how to use them, as well as examples, variations and advantages of each. The book addresses cognitive processes such as activating/focusing, selecting/organizing and integrating/applying. It also examines a variety of text frames such as cause/effect, concept/definition, problem/solution, compare/contrast and proposition/support. A section on student activities addresses developing vocabulary, brainstorming ideas, learning cooperatively, promoting discussion, encouraging writing, and building study skills. This section also promotes interactive reading, and graphic representation of thoughts and ideas.

This set of resources covers each facet of the clothing industry in detail. The student text outlines the history of clothing and explores the many approaches to design, fabric construction and sewing styles. The set also includes booklets on sewing techniques and a color analysis kit that many students would enjoy using. The resource is visually appealing, well organized and easy to follow. Student activities are relevant, varied and interesting, allowing students to go into greater depth in any area of this industry that appeals to them.

Comments:

- The scope of the resource is beyond the occupational explorations expected of students in IOP.
- The reading level is high for most students in IOP, but the resource would be useful when planning classroom activities or projects.

This set of resources addresses reading comprehension under the following six concepts: facts, main idea, sequence, context, conclusion and inference. At each reading level from Grade 2 to Grade 6, there is a booklet for each concept The booklets consist of brief articles focusing on the concepts to be mastered, followed by quick activities and questions. Answers are in the back of the booklets for students to check their responses, and a Student Profile Chart is included for students to record their progress. These booklets could be used independently by students, and would be best used to supplement a comprehensive reading program.

Comments:

• The booklets tend to be elementary in appearance; however, they are nonthreatening and should provide high success rates and feelings of accomplishment for students with reading difficulties.

This resource uses real-life situations involving parents and peers to teach students conflict-management and problem-solving strategies and to emphasize a win-win approach. The video discusses and demonstrates active listening, the difference between reacting and responding, and the use of open versus closed questions in establishing open communication. The problem-solving model illustrated includes identifying and clarifying the problem, recognizing different points of view, selecting and implementing conflict resolution strategies, and re-evaluating the solution based on new information. The resource also supports IOP strategies for identifying and describing the rights of self and others and demonstrating respect. It is recommended that this resource be used in conjunction with teacher-guided discussion and follow-up.

Creative Living is an extensive resource kit for both students and teachers that focuses on personal development, relationships and consumer skills. It presents a wholistic life view and provides information and ideas on topics such as dealing with sensitive persons, meeting special needs of individuals, and making wise choices around food and clothing. Special features in the text help students apply concepts related to balancing work and family, making the transition from school to work, getting in touch with technology, acting responsibly, making decisions and managing their lives. The text includes individual, partner and group work, and career links are provided throughout. The resource addresses a number of IOP strategies including developing self, working within a group, leadership and conflict management. The Teacher's Classroom Resources presents numerous activities and teaching strategies including think-pair-share, jigsaw activity, round table activity and many others. Assessment strategies have also been included in the teacher resource, along with a book on performance assessment.

Comments:

- The reading level of the student text is high for many students in IOP.
- The resource includes American statistics and references, which teachers may want to replace with Canadian information.

Cautions:

- Alberta Learning strongly recommends that teachers read all selections in the student texts and all activities in the teacher's guides prior to using them with students. Careful consideration should be given to the sensitivities of both the student audience and the community.

Dinner for Two / Dîner intime

Authorized Teaching Resource Grades 8, 9

					✓

Dinner for Two explores issues of conflict, competition and cooperation through the story of two chameleons who realize that their personal conflict is affecting their environment. The resource deals with conflict management and resolution, problem solving, identifying and describing rights of self and others, and demonstrating respect. The video uses a visually appealing, nonverbal animated format, which may engage IOP learners. Some post-viewing activities are suggested, but these will need to be expanded.

Cautions:

- Teachers will need to be sensitive to the students in their group.
- Because the video promotes sharing of personal opinions and experiences, it would be most effective when students have had time to become comfortable in their groups.
- Teachers are encouraged to promote respect for ideas expressed and to ensure that students understand they may "pass" during discussion.

	✓

Essentials of Mathematics 10 covers relevant topics in six chapters, using a variety of everyday and work-related mathematical problems and operations. Chapter headings include Wages, Salaries and Expenses, Personal Banking and Consumer Decisions. The focus is on the application of basic mathematics in everyday situations. This resource contains a variety of activities, samples of real life forms and other student tools, applications using technology, and teacher/student assessment tools and strategies. The resource integrates activities and expectations at school, at home, at the workplace and in the community. Essentials of Mathematics 10 contains photographs, tables, charts, graphs and other visuals that are appropriate for high school students. Each chapter also includes career connections, hints for completing mathematical operations, mental math activities, problem-solving analysis and games. Projects and other activities encourage teamwork.

Comments:

- The reading level of the resource is high for many students in IOP. Teacher assistance may be required for some students.
- This resource covers only some of the outcomes in the IOP Mathematics Program of Studies.
- Metric (SI) and Imperial measurement systems are addressed.

This resource introduces students to various land and water habitats, including wetlands, forests, deserts and others. Animal populations of these habitats and the impact of human influence are presented. The vocabulary, reading levels and success ratio are appropriate for the IOP student. The information is stimulating and visually appealing, and will engage the IOP learner. Activities are at an appropriate level and most are easy to follow. The glossary is also visually appealing. The resource encourages completion of activities through positive student reinforcement.

Comments:

- There is a series of activities that requires prior knowledge in geography.
- The case studies are American based and should be supplemented with Canadian content.

			✓

This CD-ROM provides an authentic representation of the Fortress of Louisbourg in Nova Scotia. The resource addresses a range of topics, including the lifestyles of French settlers, archaeology, battles, Cape Breton and the reconstruction of the fortress. The CD-ROM contains approximately three hours of material and includes 500 photographs, 40 minutes of video, 400 pages of printable text, and animation sequences of two key battles. It also includes a 69-page teacher's guide in PDF format, which provides fully-developed lesson plans. The format and design of the CD-ROM promote exploration, as different topics can be accessed in many different ways.

Cautions:

- This historic resource includes some controversial issues (e.g., children born out of wedlock, prostitution, drinking, gambling) that might offend some community members. Teachers are advised to take into account their particular group of students before discussing these topics.

Fright Write consists of four student readers, plus a teacher's guide. Each reader contains ten short high-interest fictional stories with low reading levels. Students may connect with the various stories in different ways by sharing personal experiences or feelings. Every story contains an element of suspense that holds the readers' attention, and the situations that develop have an unexpected twist. For example, in It's a Mystery to Me a game of hide and seek turns out to be a story of a different dimension. The student readers have inviting, visually appealing covers, and each story has a byline to engage the reader. Alongside the story, vocabulary definitions are provided and mid-story reflective questions are posed. Post-reading activities are also suggested.

The accompanying teacher's guide matches closely with the student readers. Each story has a corresponding lesson that introduces process writing in a different genre: scripts, audiotaped stories, comic books and travel tales. The lessons in the guide focus on various steps in the writing process, including prewriting, editing, drafting, revising and publishing. The resource moves students through a progression of activities, from "getting started" to "suggested culminating activities." Two activity sheets are included with each lesson.

Cautions:

- Alberta Learning recommends that teachers familiarize themselves with each story before sharing with students.
- Knowledge of students' fears or phobias may influence the selections of stories.

This series covers the following topics: escapes, mysteries, firsts, heroes, adventures, challenges, disasters, and rescues. The stories present the five W's in a user friendly format that resembles a newspaper style: a paragraph to set the scene, with details and facts following. The articles depict empowered women in equal representation with men and provide good examples of role models for young women. Following the story are two pages of questions, with an answer key provided. There is a summary chart for these questions on the final page, with the outcomes paralleling the English Language Arts objectives. These articles could be used for reports or general free reading.

This set of videos focuses on "how everyday things happen," answering the questions how do they... recycle paper? recycle steel? make money? make oatmeal cookies? The topics relate to the IOP environment units and may be used to initiate career exploration. The resource is congruent with IOP Science outcomes of Initiating and Planning, and Analyzing and Interpreting. The videos are approximately four minutes in length and will hold the attention of most IOP learners. The material is presented in a clear, concise manner. The videos include suggested activities that link science and language arts. Most of these activities will appeal to the IOP learner. The videos can be used to generate discussion or as a starting point for further research.

Comments:

• Some of the follow-up activities suggested are of an elementary level and would not be appropriate for IOP learners.

Authorized Teaching Resource Grade 10, 11, 12

					✓

In Your Face explores how to handle difficult situations and settle disputes with courtesy and respect. The video focuses on personal development and includes strategies to manage conflict and demonstrate respect for individual rights and differences. In Your Face presents a variety of everyday scenarios that may lead to conflict, such as a driver with road rage or people talking loudly in a movie theatre. After each scenario there is an opportunity to stop the video for discussion, and then the incident is repeated with suggestions about appropriate ways of dealing with the particular situation or dispute. Situations and the vocabulary used are appropriate for IOP learners.

Cautions:

• In Your Face includes a short discussion on violence in society.

• A black individual is arrested, which may reinforce negative stereotypes.

This resource consists of ten self-contained workbooks intended to supplement the Jamestown student texts for students at a middle level. Each workbook focuses on one of the following specific topics: vocabulary, main idea, making judgements, characters, drawing conclusions, making inferences, tone, literary forms, organization and significant detail. These topics parallel the IOP English Language Arts outcomes. Each of the ten volumes is divided into five parts: explanation, instruction, a sample exercise, 20 practice exercises and five or six writing activities. The writing activities include three questions and a self-directed assignment. Each of the 20 practice exercises is accompanied by four questions, and an answer key is provided for students to self-assess. These results can then be tabulated in a progress chart provided on the last page of each volume. Teachers can use the books to introduce particular skills in short, accessible lessons, or can have students work through specific books or sections for extra practice.

Comments:

• Once students have used the book to answer the four questions and tabulate their scores, the booklet cannot be used again for that purpose. To avoid this problem, teachers may want to photocopy the summary progress chart and have students answer the questions on a separate page.
• Some students may be overwhelmed by the number of workbooks.
• The volume on vocabulary contains all American content.
• The answer key is available to students; teachers may wish to remove it.
• The rating score at the bottom of the progress chart may not align with Alberta Learning standards; teachers may wish to remove this as well.

For these reasons, this resource is recommended as a teacher resource.

The Critical Reading Series is a set of 11 readers that provide nonfiction works and student exercises to build reading comprehension and critical thinking skills. The works presented in each reader deal with both current and historical topics from around the world. The stories have engaging themes, use appropriate vocabulary, and include photographs. Stories are thematically grouped into three units per reader (for example, Monsters features stories related to myths, which are divided into units based on the type of myth). Each story is followed by a set of exercises to strengthen reading comprehension and critical thinking, addressing the following skills: finding the main idea, recalling facts, making inferences, using words precisely, analyzing the author's approach, summarizing/paraphrasing, and self-assessement. At the end of each unit, charts are provided to record student progress. Stories could be used for timed reading exercises.

Cautions:

- Alberta Learning strongly recommends that teachers review activities prior to using them with students.
- Depending on students' beliefs and levels of understanding, some themes may need to be addressed with caution (e.g., Aliens and UFO's).

This resource consists of a series of nine progressively challenging student workbooks, each about 200 pages in length. Students can start at a level appropriate to their abilities, and change levels as needed. The main focus of the resource is on teaching students skills and strategies for reading and writing, but other general outcomes are inherent within suggested extension activities. The components are visually pleasing in their layout and format. Each level consists of 20 lessons, begins with background information and vocabulary, and is followed by short reading selections in various genres. The readings presented in the workbooks are high interest and are short enough that the student immediately sees completion as possible, making them appealing to IOP students. Each reading has one or two strategically placed breaks to reinforce previously introduced concepts, as well as a component on follow-up strategies. The workbooks include personal checklists, vocabulary and comprehension checks, extension activities with related resource links, and a graph for monitoring progress. Lessons can be used for timed readings if desired.

Comments:

- Level D is approximately equal to a Grade 4 reading level; subsequent levels are approximately one year higher than the previous level.
- The series is American, but content is generally nonspecific to location. Where location is specific, it is embedded in the story or article (e.g., in a historical account of the buffalo hunt).
- Matching annotated teacher's guides are available.

The Lady at Batoche chronicles the Métis rebellion in a tale of high adventure, combining numerous battle scenes with important historical details. Both the Canadian and the Métis side of this struggle are explored through the different viewpoints of the main characters. This book continues where the author's previous work, Soldier Boys, left off. The resource includes a teacher's guide which follows the same format for each of the 11 chapters: Focus (addressing significant events, characters, themes), Writer's Craft (addressing literary techniques), Speculation (posing questions), Comprehension Questions, Contexts (prompting student discussion) and Creative Work (offering extension activities and projects). General questions, a glossary and a short biography of the author are found at the back of the guide.

Comments:

- Activities and questions will need to be adapted and modified for IOP students.
- A connection to the IOP Social Studies program of studies could be made through the theme of Canadian History.

This resource consists of a volume of Canadian short stories, as well as a complementary teacher resource on short fiction. The stories are relevant to teenagers who are dealing with "coming of age," exploring topics such as victory, loss, attraction and pregnancy. By exploring tough situations with no quick fixes, the stories allow readers to identify with the characters' difficult emotions and see how others deal with these situations. The characters represent a wide range of socio-economic groups, have authentic dialogues and deal realistically with issues facing them. The writing styles and story lengths are varied to appeal to students with a range of abilities. For each selection, the teaching resource includes a summary of the story, a description of skills and concepts related to instructional goals, and suggested teaching strategies, including pre- and post-reading activities. Suggested journal/personal writing topics are also provided for each selection. The stories would be useful for inspiring class discussion.

Cautions:

- The themes presented in many of the stories could raise a number of controversial issues. Although the teaching resource provides some background information on issues, teachers may require additional support materials to feel fully prepared to handle these issues.
- Alberta Learning strongly recommends that teachers preview this resource. Careful consideration should be given to the sensitivities of both the student audience and the community.
- Note: The Blue Camero was not reviewed for IOP; therefore, disregard the section in the teaching resource pertaining to this title.

This historically accurate novel is centered around a ten-year-old Canadian-Italian girl living in Nova Scotia during WWII. The story explores the prejudice and discrimination that can be prompted by war, as the girl's community turns against her because of her Italian heritage. Other themes that are dealt with in the resource include the need for understanding and forgiveness rather than revenge and hate, personal versus social needs, and the injustice of Canada's internment policy. Each of the sixteen chapters includes a prologue and epilogue, as well as chapter headings to cue the reader. The book's reading level is low and chapters are short (six pages each). The teacher guide provides a general overview, unit focus, writer's craft notes, questions for reader response, speculation questions, a vocabulary section, and suggestions for creative extension activities. A glossary of literary terms and an index are provided.

Comments:

- Because the main character is a ten-year-old female, the novel may not be appealing to the younger male audience.
- A few questions in the teacher's guide (first chapter) are aimed at too low a group and would have to be reworded for older students.
- There are no blackline masters included with the resource.
- A connection to the Social Studies program of studies could be made through the themes of internment and world conflict.

Cautions:

- Alberta Learning strongly recommends that teachers preview this resource. Careful consideration should be given to the sensitivities of both the student audience and the community.

These two videos consist of documentary footage depicting the traditional lives of the Netsilik Inuit in the Pelly Bay region of northern Canada. The videos were produced in 1971, compiling almost 20 years of footage. Eskimo Summer shows the Inuit families hunting, fishing and preparing for the harsh winter ahead. Eskimo Winter emphasizes the games, crafts, sewing, and family dynamics that dominate in the winter months. The resource shows both the traditional lifestyle of the Inuit as it existed for thousands of years, and also the impact that Western culture was beginning to have in the 1950s. These videos would serve as a valuable resource when studying ancient Inuit culture and the effects of European contact on the practices and culture of Canada's Aboriginal peoples.

This Canadian resource depicts the life of a 13-year-old Cree boy in Alberta. The video illustrates the positive qualities of responsibility, initiative and respect for one's traditions. It also compares and contrasts contemporary life and values with traditional Aboriginal lifestyles. This resource could be used to address the English Language Arts topics of viewing, listening and research. It also relates to topics in Social Studies, Universal Strategies and Career Development.

Cautions:

- The main character skins and stretches animal hides.
- The boy's mother talks about having considered taking her own life when she was young, but states that she is glad she didn't.

The videos in this series provide firsthand accounts and personal insight into important issues and events in Canadian history. Moving Experiences explores issues of multiculturalism and the realities that immigrants have faced in Canada. In Out of Sight, Out of Mind, Japanese-Canadians describe the devastating effects of the Japanese internment during WWII, raising important issues related to civil rights and the nature of citizenship. In Persons At Last, four female activists discuss the effects of the landmark 1929 court case that finally recognized women as human beings under the law. Women At War describes the changing roles that women were required to take on during wartime, and the subsequent adjustment as men returned from abroad. In Cruel Lessons, four native seniors talk about the physical and emotional abuse they endured at residential schools, reminding viewers of the ongoing issues of cultural oppression and legal inequality. The Great Depression offers the stories of four seniors who experienced both the hardships and the sense of community that characterized the Great Depression in Canada. In Pilots of the North, former bush pilots describe their experiences trying to open up the Canadian North, recalling both the excitement and the danger involved. In Hockey Lessons, four French-Canadians discuss the Montreal riot, offering insight into possible reasons for this destructive event. Home and Away explores issues of national and regional identity as four seniors reflect on Newfoundland's vote to join Confederation in 1949. Each video presents personal interviews with four different individuals, interwoven with historical footage and photographs shown to an instrumental soundtrack. The videos are segmented into five- to ten-minute sections. Graphic organizers, discussion questions and comprehension questions are included in the teacher materials.

Cautions:

- Cruel Lessons deals with some sensitive issues, including sexual abuse and violence.
- Alberta Learning strongly recommends that teachers review this resource prior to using it with students. Careful consideration should be given to the sensitivities of both the student audience and the community.

This video outlines a six-step process to help students make healthy decisions. The problem-solving model presented involves identifying and clarifying the problem, recognizing different points of view, selecting and implementing the best solution, assessing the results, and re-evaluating the solution based on new information. The second part of the video examines the differences between passive, aggressive and assertive behavior in a variety of scenarios that may be relevant to most IOP learners. Teenage characters demonstrate decision-making and assertiveness skills in everyday situations, including situations related to bullying, careers and cheating. Throughout the video a young host comments on the skills being illustrated and reviews the decision making process. The resource encourages students to identify and describe different social and school situations requiring assertive, aggressive or passive behavior in self and others. Appropriate pre- and post-viewing teacher strategies are suggested.

Making It Work is a handbook of Canadian reading selections of various genres, along with lessons on strategies and skills related to reading, writing, language, media studies and grammar. Each lesson in the handbook is presented in a "How To" context, with guided sections leading the student through anticipatory focus questions, do-it-yourself questions, examples of literature, examples of student work (where applicable), post-lesson reflection, activities linked to The Road Ahead, and suggested extension activities. The resource uses graphic organizers, an appendix and a glossary to reinforce concepts. The handbook has a visually pleasing two-colour layout that leads the student through sections of the lesson in a progressive manner, with instructional strategies visually identified. Activities are imaginative and cue the student to use various technologies.

Comments:

- Making It Work can be used together with The Road Ahead, an anthology of Canadian readings, as a basic text.

These three books help students develop the skills necessary for understanding and using maps and globes. Students are given information on different aspects of cartography, including symbols and legends, scale and distance, route maps, physical maps, grids, latitude, longitude, time zones and graphs. They are then asked to analyze and compare various maps and charts to answer questions. The text and graphics are appealing and easily accessible. A glossary/index, answer key, sample test and blank maps are included. Book 1 is written at approximately a Grade 4 reading level; the next two volumes reach a complexity appropriate for the high school IOP student. The topics are the same in all three volumes.

Comments:

- Skills covered in this resource should be developed early in the IOP program (Grades 8 and 9).
- The resource does not cover more advanced mapping and graphing objectives.
- Students are not asked to or taught how to create maps and graphs on their own.

This resource provides hands-on suggestions for teachers to use when explaining the processes of adding, subtracting, multiplying and dividing with whole numbers; adding and subtracting integers; calculating using decimals, fractions and percents; measuring (including area and perimeter); calculating probability; and classifying shapes. The resource includes clear activities that demonstrate to students why math works the way it does. These activities are particularly useful for students who need to understand the process before they can perform it.

Comments:

- The resource is best suited for teachers of junior high IOP students, but the techniques would be appropriate for students of any age who lack an understanding of basic math processes.

This visually appealing Canadian text helps older students in IOP to learn the math they will need in everyday life. The resource focuses on practical issues related to employment earnings, income tax, purchases, credit cards, banking, investing, travel and purchasing a car. Topics are introduced using interesting, everyday situations to generate and sustain interest. Most topics covered relate to working with money, decimals, percents and ratios. Chapters in the teacher's guide parallel those in the student text, with each chapter outlining what students are expected to learn. The guide includes exercises and accompanying blackline masters, career information, chapter reviews, chapter tests and assessment plans for each chapter. It also suggests accommodations for students with special needs.

Comments:

• The text does not address mathematics outcomes related to variables, equations, measurement, 3-D objects, 2-D shapes, transformations, statistics or probability.

Numeracy at Work is a collection of examples describing how mathematics is used in a selected sample of Canadian employment opportunities. The resource addresses the quantitative skills needed to complete tasks, acknowledging that these quantitative skills are used in conjunction with other essential skills. The binder includes the following sections: Money Math, Scheduling, Budgeting and Accounting, Measurement and Calculation, Data Analysis, and Numerical Estimation. Foundational mathematics skills, authentic applications and work-based examples are provided in each chapter. Each chapter also includes a series of activities that reviews and reinforces the skills taught in that chapter, as well as answers for the activities.

Comments:

• The reading level of this resource ranges from Grade 7 to Grade 12, making it appropriate for use with teacher assistance.

Offside is a Canadian novel about a 15-year-old boy who inadvertently gets his hockey team hooked on a cold remedy drug, and then must decide how to fix the problem. The novel combines a sports theme with important issues of performance-enhancing drugs, peer pressure, family relationships and responsible decision making. The resource is written at a lower level and would be engaging for most students. This novel would work well in a teacher-directed class study. The accompanying teacher resource guide provides chapter summaries, speculation questions, comprehension questions, extension questions and essay questions. The guide also includes a glossary, bibliography and a list of related books, documentaries and web resources.

Comments:

- The size of the book could be intimidating to some IOP students; however, the story is fast paced and easy to read.

Cautions:

- The novel contains some inappropriate language and refers to issues that may be sensitive for some students, including suicide, violence, drugs and manic depression.

This resource consists of a volume of Canadian short stories, as well as a complementary teacher resource on short fiction. The stories are relevant to teenagers who are dealing with "coming of age," focusing on teenage characters struggling to understand love and relate to their parents. By exploring tough situations with no quick fixes, the stories allow readers to identify with the characters' difficult emotions and see how others deal with these situations. The characters represent a wide range of socio-economic groups, have authentic dialogues and deal realistically with issues facing them. The writing styles and story lengths are varied to appeal to students with a range of abilities. For each selection, the teaching resource includes a summary of the story, a description of skills and concepts related to instructional goals, and suggested teaching strategies, including pre- and post-reading activities. Suggested journal/personal writing topics are also provided for each selection. The stories would be useful for inspiring class discussion.

Cautions:

- The themes presented in many of the stories could raise a number of controversial issues. Although the teaching resource provides some background information on issues, teachers may require additional support materials to feel fully prepared to handle these issues.
- Alberta Learning strongly recommends that teachers preview this resource. Careful consideration should be given to the sensitivities of both the student audience and the community.
- Note: The Blue Camero was not reviewed for IOP; therefore, disregard the section in the teaching resource pertaining to this title.

This video relates strongly to the topic of Canadian identity, presenting a series of photographs depicting the Canadian landscape from a wide variety of perspectives. The images range from high-speed traffic pictures to aerial shots of Alberta's Badlands. Narrated by Peter Gzowski and others, the video features amusing quotes, informative dialogue, and key historical context for the images, including a discussion of the relationship of the Aboriginal people to the land and the effects of European settlement and exploitation. The video uses a variety of filming techniques, including aerial views, satellite images and traditional snapshots. These visual images are enhanced by the dialogue, music and other sound effects. Postcards from Canada provides a good basis to stimulate students' investigation of Canadian history and culture.

Cautions:

• Potentially controversial issues related to European settlement in Canada are present in the resource but are introduced impartially and without judgment.

This series consists of four progressively challenging levels, each of which is complete and easy to use. Each level contains four fiction chapter books, two reference information books and two biographical stories. These student texts deal with relevant and engaging themes such as growing up, relationships, and resolving conflicts. Many of the characters in the stories are 14- or 15-years-old, and provide viewpoints that would be familiar to IOP students. The biographical books tell the stories of young people (one male and one female) and focus on a life situation in which they were involved. The reference books provide background to understand topics that arise in the chapter books and biographies. The look of the readers is modern, action-packed and respectful of IOP students' integrity. The resource includes a number of assessments: a reading placement test, end of selection tests, end of paperback tests, end of theme practice tests, and end of level tests. There are also portfolio tips, ideas, and assignments for students. There is a self-assessment checklist to ensure completion of each component at each level and to mark progress.

The teacher's resource includes several items to support teachers in implementing the student texts. The Workout Book uses the first chapter of each paperback as a springboard for discussing reading strategies, word analysis skills, word identification strategies (phonics), and writing forms. The writing forms have excellent prompts that are not elementary in appearance. This resource is applicable to students of all skill levels, styles and experiences, including special needs and ESL students. It is especially relevant to the IOP student. The teacher resource includes many teaching strategies, tips and a classroom management wheel to help the teacher run the program in various ways.

Cautions:

• Some of the stories begin with material that is negative or displays a lack of respect to others; however, in the reading there is always a positive outcome that teaches a moral. For this reason, each story needs to be read in its entirety and followed by discussion.

The look of the readers is modern, action-packed and respectful of IOP students' integrity. The resource includes a number of assessments: a reading placement test, end of selection tests, end of paperback tests, end of theme practice tests, and end of level tests. There are also portfolio tips, ideas, and assignments for students. There is a self-assessment checklist to ensure completion of each component at each level and to mark progress.

The teacher's resource includes several items to support teachers in implementing the student texts. The Workout Book uses the first chapter of each paperback as a springboard for discussing reading strategies, word analysis skills, word identification strategies (phonics), and writing forms. The writing forms have excellent prompts that are not elementary in appearance. This resource is applicable to students of all skill levels, styles and experiences, including special needs and ESL students. It is especially relevant to the IOP student. The teacher resource includes many teaching strategies, tips and a classroom management wheel to help the teacher run the program in various ways.

Cautions:

• Some of the stories begin with material that is negative or displays a lack of respect to others; however, in the reading there is always a positive outcome that teaches a moral. For this reason, each story needs to be read in its entirety and followed by discussion.

This series consists of four progressively challenging levels, each of which is complete and easy to use. Each level contains four fiction chapter books, two reference information books and two biographical stories. These student texts deal with relevant and engaging themes such as growing up, relationships, and resolving conflicts. Many of the characters in the stories are 14- or 15-years-old, and provide viewpoints that would be familiar to IOP students. The biographical books tell the stories of young people (one male and one female) and focus on a life situation in which they were involved. The reference books provide background to understand topics that arise in the chapter books and biographies. The look of the readers is modern, action-packed and respectful of IOP students' integrity. The resource includes a number of assessments: a reading placement test, end of selection tests, end of paperback tests, end of theme practice tests, and end of level tests. Radical Math is the 2001 Millennium volume in the Box Cars & One-Eyed Jacks series of educational games. The resource consists of 100 games that engage students in enjoyable, hands-on learning experiences using cards, regular dice and special dice. The games are designed to help students learn basic mathematics skills related to whole numbers, decimals, integers, fractions, ratios and percents. There are several games to choose from in each category.

Comments:

- Some of the games are beyond the scope and level of IOP.
- Teachers will need to clearly link the games to the IOP Mathematics learning outcomes.

The Reading for Today series aims to teach reading skills by integrating sight words, phonics, comprehension, lifeskills and writing. The student book is divided into seven units with stories focusing on individuals in various everyday situations. Each unit ends with a review, and a final review is provided at the end of the book. Colourful and engaging photographs accompany the stories. The corresponding workbook consists of additional stories with blackline masters that take the student through additional exercises to build vocabulary, writing skills and comprehension. An answer key is included at the back of the workbook. Teachers can use this resource to choose specific stories and exercises for individual students.

Comments:

• The few forms that are included ask for state and zip code rather than the Canadian equivalents.

• The content and geographical location of all stories are American, but most of the lifeskills and situations dealt with are applicable to Canadian youth.

• This series was written for adult learners, but is useful for students in IOP.

This Canadian resource addresses a number of outcomes for English Language Arts. The text focuses on strategies for successful reading, writing, and oral and visual communication, and also helps students develop skills for research, representing and group work. The first section of the text comprehensively covers reading and writing skills, with 21 tutorials on these topics. There are various examples of written work, some by Canadian students. The second section focuses on technical writing, providing basic examples of technical and business writing concepts that students will need in order to enter the workforce. The third section, on oral and visual communication, prepares students for research assignments. Each outcome in the three sections is supported by tutorials, strategies, checklists, tips and activities. Each tutorial begins with learning outcomes and ends with tools for measuring success. The resource includes a teacher's guide that provides teaching tips, assessment suggestions, blackline masters and additional activities. It also contains a section on ESL and ESD students that suggests alternative activities.

Comments:

• Only one example is provided for most of the different types of reading materials and writing assignments; teachers will have to supplement these with additional examples for further student participation.

The Road Ahead is an anthology that presents Canadian content in thematic units, with each selection linked to the Making It Work handbook. The anthology leads the student through the units in a progressive manner. Various genres are represented appropriately, and each selection is prefaced by a focus section and followed by a reflection section. Career development is featured through material on writing resumés and covering letters, as well as a sample interview. Throughout, the student is asked to reflect and provide self-assessment.

Comments:

• The Road Ahead can be used together with Making It Work: A Handbook for Reading, Writing, Language and Media.

This resource consists of four videos containing 40 clips on the topic of television. The clips discuss a variety of topics, including the media's role/responsibility in producing social change, the media's power of persuasion, the media's creation of separate environments in order to market products and services, and the political responsibilities related to the media. These topics parallel the outcomes for IOP English Language Arts. The clips are organized into five core IOP units: issues of representation, issues of persuasion, how media are constructed, the global impact of media, and converging technologies. For each clip, the accompanying teacher's guide includes the following sections: Before Viewing, where the issue is introduced and pre-existing knowledge is identified; Focus for Viewing, where guided discussion and questions are presented; and After Viewing, where activities and further questions are provided.

Comments:

• The Global Citizen clip in Video 4 could also be used for IOP Social Studies Grade 10.

Cautions:

• There are four clips that come with a warning about the content and issues discussed. Alberta Learning strongly recommends that teachers preview the clips before using them with students.

• It is recommended that teachers use the teacher's guide to steer discussion and analysis of all clips.

Science Wise supports some units in IOP Science, Grades 8 to 11. The text includes units on chemistry at work and home; sound and picture communications, medical technology; gardening, horticulture, landscaping and forestry; and alternative environments. The resource begins by addressing basic safety issues in relation to the units that follow. Career links, Web site links, graphic organizers, unit summaries and extension activities are provided. The teacher's guide parallels the chapters in the student text, and contains detailed lesson plans grouped by science concept, e.g., chemical reaction effects on different materials. Each chapter in the teacher's guide includes an overview, a curriculum correlation chart, a planning chart, a section on accommodating exceptional needs, additional activities and blackline masters. Lesson plans are included for each day of a typical semester and are based on a 70-minute class period.

Comments:

- The vocabulary and reading levels may be high for some students in IOP, and the text is dense in some places.

Cautions:

- The resource has a strong Ontario bias; some information will need to be supplemented with Alberta content, especially the environmental material.
- References are made to specific Web sites that are not approved by Alberta Learning. Teachers, for their own protection, should review the current status of the Web sites, including documents identified in the links, to ensure that the sites contain accurate and appropriate information.

This series of short books consists of adaptations of classic literature. The books cover a wide range of forms, topics and writing styles, all presented at a lower reading level. Frankenstein, Gulliver's Travels, Huckleberry Finn, The Iliad, Julius Caesar, and A Midsummer Night's Dream are all recommended for Grade 10 students. In these books, the formal language of the classics as they were written has been maintained, as well as the "thinking" of the periods; however, the selections are formatted for easy-reading, with shorter chapters to encourage completion. Each book is divided into six or seven chapters, some having an epilogue and all having a glossary of terms. Each of the chapters is approximately six pages in length interspersed generously with full-page, full-colour artist's renditions of scenes. The covers are also done in full colour to engage students. The teacher's guide provides author information, personal response questions, comprehension questions, critical thinking questions connected to literary terms, writing activities focusing on particular skills, and an answer key. It also includes a summary of each story, which would be useful to keep on hand when students are choosing stories; there are no summaries provided on the back of the covers.

Comments:

• No blackline masters are included, and questions posed in the teacher guide would have to be provided to students by the teacher.

Cautions:

• Alberta Learning strongly recommends that teachers review activities in these resources prior to using them with students. Careful consideration should be given to the sensitivities of both the student audience and the community due to some of the subjects raised.

This series consists of shortened versions of classic literature, adapted to a Grade 4 to 6 reading level. The series illustrates different literary periods and writing styles. The Odyssey, Romeo and Juliet, Sherlock Holmes, The Time Machine, and Tom Sawyer are all recommended for Grade 10 students. Each book begins with three introductory activities requiring students to reflect on their prior knowledge and personal experiences. After the story, there are nine factual questions based on information from the book. These are followed by five or six interpretive questions to stimulate critical thinking and literary skills. These questions can also be used for group discussion. Finally, there are approximately five writing activities to enrich students' understanding of the literary work.

The series illustrates different literary periods and writing styles. Moby Dick, Pride and Prejudice, The Turn of the Screw, and Wuthering Heights are all recommended for Grade 12 students. Each book begins with three introductory activities requiring students to reflect on their prior knowledge and personal experiences. After the story, there are nine factual questions based on information from the book. These are followed by five or six interpretive questions to stimulate critical thinking and literary skills. These questions can also be used for group discussion. Finally, there are approximately five writing activities to enrich students' understanding of the literary work.

These resources address the English Language Arts topics of reading, writing and viewing. The resources use a variety of articles to help students develop and practice the skills of skimming and scanning at the middle or advanced level. The aim is to make students understand the purpose of skimming and scanning, and to increase their reading comprehension by improving these skills. For each level, the skimming section consists of ten lessons, each followed by ten questions. Students are asked to skim an article, record their time, and obtain their reading speed by converting their time to words per minute using a chart provided. Students are then asked to complete the ten comprehension questions and mark their responses. The scanning sections consist of 15 lessons with ten questions each. Students are presented with practical, everyday materials such as forms, charts, lists and schedules. They are asked to scan the material for the answers and record their time, as well as the number of correct answers, at the bottom of the page. The resources include a summary profile where students can track their progress by recording their results from each lesson. The accompanying teacher's guide provides an answer key, along with the reading level of each article.

Comments:

- When using these resources with IOP students, the focus should be on practising skimming and scanning techniques to improve reading skills.
- Having students time themselves adds to the difficulty of the task. Teachers may choose to disregard the timing component or have someone else time students, for example by having students work in pairs.
- Students' times on scanning comprehension questions may be misleading; some students may take longer due to a difficulty in putting answers into a written format, not because of a lack of comprehension.
- The resources contain a number of American references that would need to be replaced with Canadian information.

This set of resources covers a variety of essential topics in reading and writing, paralleling the outcomes for English Language Arts. Basic Skills in Reading includes sections on fiction, nonfiction, poetry and drama, and prose and visual information. The text begins with an Inventory Assessment, composed of five articles with five or six questions each, to help students assess their own skills and knowledge. The results from the inventory can be compiled on a Correlation Chart, which identifies areas that students need to work on and points them toward specific pages for help. The inventory is followed by four units. Each unit begins with background information and reading strategies, followed by stories or articles. Concepts are reinforced and tested during reading, with questions interspersed throughout the article, and again after reading, with approximately 15 follow-up questions after each article. At the end of each unit there is a review test made up of three articles and six or seven questions. Each unit also includes a section on Reading at Work that consists of one article and five questions. At the end of the workbook there is a comprehensive post-test made up of five articles with six questions each. The results from these questions are compiled on another Correlation Chart, allowing students to gauge their progress and identify areas of continued need. There is an answer key provided for all questions throughout the workbook.

Basic Skills in Writing contains four units dealing with essay and creative writing, workplace and personal writing, and grammar. Unit 1 covers the writing process, narrative writing, expository writing and persuasive writing. Unit 2 focuses on careers, covering letter writing, job search writing, workplace writing, explanatory writing and reports. Unit 3 deals specifically with grammar, focusing on mechanics, usage and sentence structures. Each of the first three units contains ELA outcomes, a section on Writing at Work, a unit review and a writing connection activity. Unit 4 is a Writing Handbook containing numerous student checklists and practice activities. The workbook ends with a comprehensive post-test of 100 questions and a written essay assignment. The results from the test can be compiled on a Correlation Chart similar to those used in the reading workbook. There is an answer key provided for all questions throughout the workbook.

Comments:

- Due to the number and level of activities in these workbooks, they are recommended for Grades 10 to 12.
- Unit 2 in the writing booklet could be used for Grades 8 to 12 due to its clarity and degree of guided student direction.
- This resource is American based. Teachers will want to replace some American references with equivalent Canadian ones (e.g., zip codes with postal codes).

This series consists of ten individual mystery stories in small novelette form, each bound in full-colour softcover. The stories are set in situations that students would be familiar with, and the plots revolve around real-life experiences worthy of discussion. Various reading levels are represented. The Mystery Magazine, in glossy, teen-magazine format, engages students in quick reading segments, cartoons, puzzles and a word-search. The stories are interspersed with suitable pen and ink-wash drawings. The teacher's guide provides rationales, reproducible blackline masters, a synopsis of each story, vocabulary and answer keys to worksheets. Blackline masters are formatted for clarity and ease of use. The guide is clearly divided into pre-reading focus, suggested applications of blackline masters, and follow-up activities.

Comments:

• The Mystery Magazine is slightly outdated in its representation of television and movie content. The fashions shown on individuals in pictures are dated as well; however the basic content in the magazine is appropriate.

• There is little Canadian content other than one story set in the Canadian Rockies. One form in the worksheets requires a zip code instead of a postal code.

• The teacher's guide does not provide suggestions for use of media or technology.

This series consists of ten individual science fiction novelettes. The topics in these books will be of high interest to most students in this age group. The books include life-like sketches of teens on each page, making them suitable for low level readers. The novelettes are accompanied by a science fiction magazine, which consists of short articles relating the books to current movies and to teen contexts. Illustrations, photographs and activities set the scene for connecting the books to current happenings. The teacher's guide provides a variety of strategies for connecting the materials in the books to basic English Language Arts subject matter (e.g., vocabulary building).

This resource allows students to view authentic application forms and workplace documents from a variety of occupations to see what levels of reading, writing and document use skills are necessary for success. The occupations selected (e.g., personnel clerk, residential installer, repairs and service) are ones that would be suitable and of interest to most IOP students. The resource explains the differences between classroom reading and workplace reading (reading to learn versus reading to do), and discusses how documents are used in the workplace and where writing skills may be needed. The selected occupations are each placed along a clear, easy to follow rating scale (from simple to complex) for each of the above skills as well. Blackline masters of application forms and documents are included, as well as a guide on how to obtain them in one's own area.

This resource gives teachers background information and instructional strategies for helping students in the career areas of job preparation (Module One), career planning (Module Two) and "The Proactivity Project" (Module Three). Module Three helps students develop project planning skills in the context of career planning and promotes problem solving methods to identify and solve the problem, make a decision and then follow through with action. The resource includes student activities that are clear, meaningful and appropriate for learners in IOP. Suggestions are provided on how to approach each component. Lists of necessary materials, blackline masters and places to obtain information are also included.

This series of workbooks focuses on spelling from a Grade 3 to 8 level. The workbooks could provide a high level of success and accomplishment for struggling students due to the clear exercises, prompts and teaching resources that are included. Before using the resource, students would take a placement test to determine at which level in the series to begin. The first three levels involve learning six words per lesson for 30 weeks, with a review test every fifth lesson. The next three levels involve the same format, but with eight words per lesson instead of six. There are four workbook pages per lesson–one page per day. The last page of every lesson provides a dictation test, in which students respond to sentences that are provided. Each level has a corresponding teacher's edition with the answer key enclosed. There is also a chart at the back of each workbook for students to record their results. This resource could be used for self-directed student learning or teacher-led study. Workbooks could be used in their entirety or run off as individual blackline masters as needed.

Comments:

• The resource is American based. Teachers will need to replace American references with Canadian information.

Thinking Tools for Kids consists of 89 blackline masters incorporating 32 tools to help students develop comprehension and study skills. Some of the blackline masters deal with the same tool at different student levels. The tools are closely linked to specific outcomes in the IOP programs of study, allowing students to use these tools in their language arts, social studies and science classes as they progress through school. The tools are organized according to the following outcomes: generating and identifying ideas; describing, comparing and contrasting; classifying; exploring whole-part relationships; sequencing; problem solving; organizing information; computer-based tools; and sample assessment rubrics. A curriculum link to language arts, social studies and science is included at the back of the book.

Comments:

- Some of the blackline masters are quite elementary in appearance and may need to be modified/enhanced for older students.

This Canadian novel recounts the adventures of two sisters who purchase a magical book. As the sisters discover, the book gives powers of extra-sensory perception (ESP) to anyone who places a personal possession inside. The book is written at a lower level and is easy for students to read.

Comments:

- The resource does not include a teacher's guide.

Cautions:

- The topic of ESP may need a mature introduction for some students.
- The names of some of the people in the story may be perceived as creating or reinforcing negative images of immigrant groups.

This resource combines history, geography, geology, science, ecology and meteorology in a set of five programs. Air focuses on Canada's diverse range of climates and how climate influences the way people eat, dress, feel and live in different areas of the country and at different times of the year. The video explores the damage that can be caused by the weather, highlighting the 1998 ice storm in eastern Canada. In Fire, the narrator explains how usable energy can be produced by solar power, uranium, water or burning coal. The video shows early forms of energy, highlights the importance of Alberta's petroleum and natural gas resources, and provides information on possible energy sources of the future. Land describes the diverse landforms and industries in each of Canada's six regions: the Cordillera, the Central Plains, the Canadian Shield, the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence River, the Atlantic and the Arctic. Water explores the many forms of water prevalent in Canada, from lakes to glaciers to waterfalls. The video features interesting trivia facts and emphasizes how the availability of water influences land use and development. Life deals with Canada's people, flora and fauna. It gives an overview of Canada's settlement, from the earliest nomadic hunters to the Vikings and European explorers, and discusses the impact of immigration on Canada's cultural makeup. The video also highlights native plant and animal species, and discusses how different animals have adapted to life in Canada. These videos combine several subjects under one theme, and could be used to introduce materials, review topics or provide a starting point for further research. Each program in the set could be used alone or with one or more of the others. The videos are divided into short segments, making it easy to pick and choose parts as needed. The narration gives clear, relevant and interesting information. Maps and animation are used periodically throughout the videos. Each video is accompanied by a print summary of main concepts and a chart indicating how the video relates to specific topics and subject areas.

This resource consists of a set of student readers, each containing 12 stories. The stories deal with different geographical locations, and are thematically grouped into five types: seas, mountains, jungle, desert and polar region. Each story centers around historical figures (individuals or groups of people) who had to deal with a situation specific to their geographical location. The stories are written at an appropriate level and are engaging to read. The books include quality photographs or artist renditions, and full colour is used throughout. Each book begins with a world map isolating the locations found in the stories, followed by smaller, more detailed maps. These maps are accompanied by exercises to teach students how to read and understand maps. The resource includes a variety of exercises and strategies, including fill-in-the-blank, True or False, Fact or Opinion, vocabulary questions, and puzzles. There is an answer key and a glossary at the back of each book, and a chart for noting student scores is provided. These resources could be used for teaching map skills or for introducing explorers.

Comments:

- Blackline masters are not available; since the books contain both the stories and the workbook-like exercises, students will have to record their responses elsewhere.

These workbooks use articles and word studies to address the subject of vocabulary, specifically supporting the ELA outcomes on using context clues and analyzing unfamiliar words. The middle level workbook is appropriate for Grades 8 and 9, and the advanced workbook for Grades 10 to 12. Each workbook contains 32 lessons, alternating between related nonfiction articles (e.g., one on Laurel and Hardy followed by one on Masters of Comedy) and word study lessons that link the vocabulary and concepts used in the articles. Every fifth lesson provides review and extension activities to reinforce concepts. There is a glossary in the back of each workbook, along with a Personal Words section where students may record their own choice of words for reference.

When the Dust Settles uses the story of two vengeful gophers to explore ways of defining and managing anger, steps to problem solving, and skills to enhance communication. The resource deals with conflict management and resolution, problem solving, identifying and describing rights of self and others, and demonstrating respect. The video uses a visually appealing, nonverbal animated format which may engage IOP learners. Some post-viewing activities are suggested, but these will need to be expanded.

Cautions:

- Teachers will need to be sensitive to students in their group.
- Because the video promotes sharing of personal opinions and experiences, it would be most effective when students have had time to become comfortable in their groups.
- Teachers are encouraged to promote respect for ideas expressed and to ensure that students understand they may "pass" during discussion.

The Wild Side series consists of short nonfiction articles dealing with unusual events and subjects from around the world. Each book in the series contains three units, each with five lessons. Throughout the nine volumes, the articles cover diverse, high-interest material, including the disappearance of Jimmy Hoffa, killer bees, cryonic death, Bonnie and Clyde, and the World Trade Center bombing. Articles are followed by a group of four reading comprehension exercises and three critical thinking exercises. At the end of each lesson a personal response prompt invites reflection and personal assessment. The articles could be used for timed reading exercises. Tables and graphs are included in each of the volumes for students to chart their progress. The glossy, full-colour covers are visually appealing and engaging. Graphics within the text are photographs from, or related to, the subject or event. The accompanying teacher booklet provides teaching notes and an answer key for the exercises.

Cautions:

• Teachers are advised to familiarize themselves with the resource and to take into account the sensitivities of their particular students when choosing selections.
